TRANSFER COUNSELING

SUNY Broome students are encouraged to meet with a Counselor during a scheduled appointment or during walk-in hours to discuss transfer college selection, the transfer application process, academic preparation for transferring, colleges and universities with programs of study in disciplines of interest, transfer scholarships and resources.

It is never too soon to begin planning for the transfer process. We actually encourage students to meet with a Counselor and begin the process early in their first semester. There are a number of steps to the process, and our experience can help make the process easier. Check out the Transfer Day Directory PDF for more information.

Looking to transfer to SUNY Cortland? Make sure you pay Greg Diller a visit early in your academic career.

Diller is a transfer mobility advisor and he can help you with all things Red Dragon, from course recommendations here at SUNY Broome to financial aid, student life and support services. Considering that SUNY Broome is Cortland's second or third largest feeder school, it's an important service.

"We're filling up fast," he said on his second official day back on campus.

His goal is to forge connections early on with prospective transfer students to make their transition as pain-free as possible. Popular majors of inquiring students include early childhood education, sports management, physical education and exercise science, although there is a wide variety across the board.

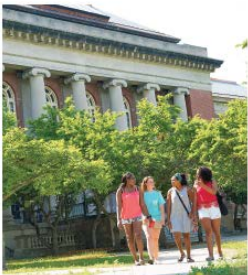

Start your path to SUNY Cortland on day one

Meet with a SUNY Cortland academic advisor on your campus to talk about:

- Majors
- Careers
- Course Recommendations
- Credit Evaluation
- Transfer Process to Cortland

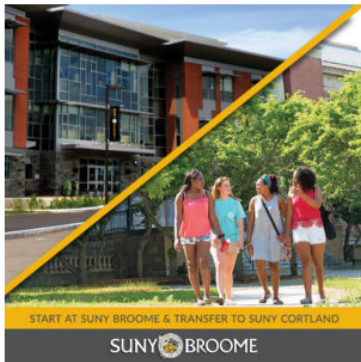

Appointments are held weekly at SUNY Broome.

From Hornet to Red Dragon: Path to Cortland program eases transfer process

March 20, 2018

Before Brittni Duke transferred to SUNY Cortland, she made sure she was well-prepared.

Duke, who graduated from SUNY Broome with two Associate's degrees in 2017, worked closely with Greg Diller, Cortland's transfer mobility advisor, starting in 2016. He helped answer questions about multiple issues including housing, and kept in touch while Duke formulated her future plans.

They met about four times to make sure everything was on track, and they still keep in touch to make sure everything is going well.

"It's really nice to know that someone cares about how it's going with all the new experiences," said Duke, now a junior Sports Management major interested in event management.

Now in its second year, the Path to Cortland program helps students plan their futures. Students – who don't have to be committed to SUNY Cortland, or near graduation – can schedule an appointment with Diller, the visiting expert on topics ranging from course recommendations to financial aid, student life and support services.
